FINISHED THEIR WORK.

The Two Synods Concluded Their Programs Thursday.

THE CLOSING HOURS

Taken Up in Transaction of Important Business By Both Bodies.

The Presbyterians who held the keys of the city from Tuesday to Thursday afternoon, turned them over to the proper authority the latter afternoon and the delegates are all at their homes with fond recollections of the largest, most enthusiastic and important meetings ever held.

Synod "A" rushed through its business in time for the members to take the 11:18 I. C. train Thursday morning.

Just before the close of the sessions the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, that the sincere thanks of the synod be hereby expressed to the Rev. Edw. H. Hull and the session of the First Presbyterian church U. S. A., of Hopkinsville, for the use of their church and for other kindly courtesies; to Mr. James West for his untiring efforts in providing for the comfort and entertainment of the synod, and for his other labors which more than those of any other one person, have made this meeting a success in its local feature; to the newspapers for their generous reports; to the railroads for courtesies in transportation, to the moderator for his kind and impartial manner of presiding; to the stated clerk for his kindly help in many ways, and to the good people of Hopkinsville who have opened their homes to the members of the synod, and for their warm hearted and unstinted hospitality and uniform courtesy." Owensboro was selected as the place of meeting for synod "A" next year.

Cumberland Synod.

The Cumberland synod's time Thursday afternoon was partly taken up with discussions as to the church property situation in the present crisis. Dr. J. L. Hudgins, of Union City, was the principal speaker. When the question of standing by the Cumberland church was put to the congregation every member of the synod rose to their feet.

Rev. Dr. Henderson gave a very interesting talk on "Our Book," wherein he emphasized the difference between the confession of faith of the Cumberland Presbyterian church and the Presbyterian church U. S. A.

Every member of the synod, 133 in number, contributed one dollar each for the extension of missionary work.

The "Cumberland Banner" was decided upon as the organ of the church and other important matters were acted upon, as well as a resolution of thanks to the people of the city for their unbounded hospitality toward the members of the synod and visitors present at its sessions.

The Cumberland synod will meet next year in Bowling Green.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Befalls Mr. John W. Terrell, While at Work.

Mr. John W. Terrell, who lives on East 19th street and works for the Forbes Mfg. Co. as a carpenter, happened to a very painful and serious accident Wednesday afternoon. He was at work, making some repairs in the livery stable of Mr. Howard Brance, on Seventh street, when the long ladder that he was standing on turned over, throwing Mr. Terrell to the floor. He fell on his back across an obstacle lying on the floor. He was rendered unconscious and was removed to his home and a physician was summoned and an examination showed that several ribs had been dislocated and that the muscle of his back was badly bruised. The accident, while a very painful one, is not thought to be of a serious nature and Mr. Terrell was improving yesterday, but it will be some time before he will be able to return to work.

BROKE WINDOW

And Entered Mayes' Fruit Store Thursday Night.

Frank Mayes, the colored man who keeps a fruit store near the L. & N. on 9th street, found on opening his store yesterday morning that some one had been in his house during the night. One of the panes of glass in a show window had been broken and an entrance thus effected. With the exception of a few pennies nothing was taken of any value. It may have been that a few cigars or confectionery were appropriated, but not enough to be missed.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Brother of Rev. Geo. C. Abbott Expires in Virginia.

Rev. George C. Abbott, rector of Grace church, received a telegram Thursday announcing the sudden death of his brother, Dr. Julian H. Abbott, at Appomattox, Va. The deceased was a prominent young physician. No details of his death were given in the dispatch. Mr. Abbott left Thursday for Appomattox to attend the funeral.

GEO. CRAWFORD GOES GUNNING.

Fires Three Shots at Eagle and Takes to Woods at Once.

BALL THROUGH HAT.

Difficulty Originated in Pool Room on East Seventh Street.

East Seventh street had a shake-up Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock, and bullets were flying around a little too numerous for pedestrians on that thoroughfare.

George Crawford, a negro known in police circles, and who is better known as "Trout," fired three shots at Bud Eagle, another descendant of the natives of "Darkest Africa." They had gotten into a quarrel in Wellington Berry's colored pool room Wednesday night. "Trout" was not disposed to press things too closely, as he did not have his gun with him at that time.

Thursday afternoon the two men met again at the same place, and the quarrel was renewed. The Eagle was disposed to fly, and got out from the street when "Trout" opened fire on him. One ball went through the bird's hat, another went through a pane of glass in the shining parlor across the street, and the third went wide of the mark.

After finding that he had not winged his bird, Trout rushed through an alley and disappeared. Some of the men about police headquarters insist that he "evaporated," while others are inclined to the opinion that he had learned a lesson from the Eagle and "soared aloft."

Be that as it may, the police will be satisfied if Trout of that kind are never found in this section again. He is certainly a "game" fish, and the reason he didn't bring down the Eagle was not because he didn't try. "Trout" is a tough citizen, and spends a great part of his time working on the streets to pay fines for misdemeanors of almost every kind known to the calendar.

Some Facts About Eggs.

Grade your eggs. Quality always counts. Now, keep the nest clean. Make money while the hens lay. Hens over-fat! Poor layers and bad feeding. The lazy, sluggish hen is a waster. "If every hen laid an egg each day we'd have to call on the de'il to pay."

Don't run around looking for eggs. Feed your hens so they will lay so many you can't miss them.

There are more eggs lost through insufficient nests to doubly repay the cost of extra ones. When you build a nest, build a good one while at it.

One that suits the hen, the egg and yourself will about do.

If you would preserve your reputation don't preserve your eggs.

At any rate, don't try to sell preserved eggs as fresh.

You are deceiving your customer, but yourself most of all.

The cheaper eggs get the easier it is to get a premium over ordinary rates.

Some eggs are cheap, and, comparatively speaking, nasty. The careful farmer insures top rates by rigid care and grading.

Never sell the eggs from a stolen nest. If they are good enough for a customer they're good enough for you. Try them at home.

Waterglass is a tip-top egg preservative, and cheap enough in all conscience. Use 10 per cent. waterglass with 90 per cent. water.

A lot of people lost money over cold storage eggs this year, but they need not have done so. Greed spoiled the scheme, and careless packing helped the limp of loss.

We know a grocer who buys good brands of mixed country eggs cheap, and gets twice as much for a few of the largest and choicest looking as he obtains for the balance. Who loses?

Lie eat eggs—did you ever know that? It's a fact. They eat them before they are made by sucking the bird's blood, and diverting the egg-making material from its proper channel.

If every producer of eggs in this country were to take absolute precaution against marketing a single bad egg, and would grade his eggs according to size, color and quality, before marketing, not only would his profits at once be considerably enhanced, but the growth in egg consumption would be so large and so rapid that much higher prices would prevail over and above the bonus for special quality. Think this over.

Trap-nests are not only valuable from the standpoint of picking out the best layers, and enabling the breeder to breed from his best birds and improve his strain each year, but they mean clean nests, (hence less egg washing) and more concentrated attention on the birds and eggs—hence better quality marketed and better prices. Anything that induces a poultry-keeper to take more interest in his hens and study them closer will mean a decided gain in more ways than the original intention of the invention.

Recently poultrymen in our vicinity were praying it would rain. Still more recently they prayed it would stop. Fact is, the rain caught them unprepared, birds inadequately housed, yards dirty, and insufficiently drained, and consequently there was a big drop in egg production, and an alarming attack of disease with the first real smart shower. It always pays you to take things as they are if you prepare for what they may, can, or will be. Fine weather is the time to prepare for wet, if you wish to avoid loss.—Australian Hen.

Cheap Food for Chickens.

With corn commanding a good price and wheat too expensive to feed poultry, it is no wonder many farmers complain that it costs too much to keep poultry. They forget, however, that chickens and other fowls need not be fed exclusively on expensive foods, for every farmer could provide a quantity of cheap, wholesome food at small cost if he were willing to take a little time and pains. In extremely cold weather corn must be fed at night, or the chickens will not be able to sustain life through the long nights—but that is only for a short time each season.

One year a farmer buried all the small and refuse heads of cabbage, the inferior turnips, the runty apples for his chickens, and was surprised to see the way the hens devoured them in cold weather. The vegetables were boiled, and the water thickened with bran and fed to them warm. They did better than when kept exclusively on grain, and after that the surplus from the garden found "home consumption" on that farm. After the potatoes are dug you can see chickens industriously scratching out the ones left in the ground, and that should furnish a hint to all people with spare ground, while the way they fly over fences to ruin cabbage heads shows the necessity and craving for green food.

They love carrots in the winter, and will neatly dig them out of the ground as soon as the weather thaws if the crop is not dug. A mixture of different vegetables boiled with a little corn meal to thicken is as good as dessert to the inhabitants of the hen house, and a welcome change from a whole grain diet. Sweet corn, popcorn and vegetables caught by the frost will be eaten with relish in the chicken yard, and all that is necessary is to chop them in bits.

If you are called to town frequently try to make friends with a restaurant keeper or two, and buy the scraps from their tables. It is not worth while to make an extra trip for the stuff, but one wise farmer paid for the scraps of good vegetables and fruit and made money by the transaction. He was obliged to be in town several times a week delivering supplies, and it was a very small job to call for the bits of bread, meat and table scraps. A tightly covered lard can was used to carry them, and the chickens did very well on the mixed diet. The farmer would have had no use for the vegetable he gave in exchange for the scraps, as they were merely the surplus from his garden, and he was not in the vegetable business, but they purchased enough food for his chickens the year round with the addition of a very little grain.

Quite often grocers have spoiled goods like oatmeal or old crackers, to dispose of for a song, and it pays to invest. Of course it is unwise to purchase moldy food, no matter how cheap, but sometimes food products become unsalable by being infested with insects, and these are all right for fowls. By being on the lookout it is possible to pick up many cheap foods from dealers in addition to the vegetable diet.

Butchers' scraps are ideal if fresh and good, but sometimes the demand is so great they cost too much. It pays to use bone and meat occasionally from some source, and the hens are grateful for the rags and tags of meat from any source. Milk, sweet and sour, is relished, and when thickened with meal makes ideal food for young chicks. Don't save all the spare milk for the pigs. Give a part of it to the chickens, instead of feeding them one thing all the time.

A lady who had great success with her chickens always bought stale bread from a town baker at one and one-half cents a loaf. At first sight this seemed expensive, but the bread was carefully mixed with boiled potatoes, corn meal, green scraps, and sometimes sweet milk, but never made sloppy, and it was wonderful the way the young chicks put on flesh for market with this diet. She also bought refuse rice, cracked and dirty, to feed the chicks, and it paid. Fowls like variety as well as human beings, and are grateful for a change from corn or wheat, however expensive the latter may be.

Spokane Homing Club.

Warren Clark, Secretary of the Spokane Homing Club, of Spokane, Wash., has prepared the appended Article Describing the Work and Training Methods Adopted by That Organization—He is an Authority on the Subject, and Has Under His Care Some of the Best Strains in the Pacific Northwest

SOME time ago a suggestion arose as to whether it was instinct or memory and eyesight which a homing pigeon exercises in coming home from long distances. It has been proved that it is primarily instinct. For instance, a bird which had never been trained was sold, and after three years imprisonment, came home, 400 miles, over entirely new country.

The love of home is, probably, stranger in a homing pigeon than in any other bird or animal. For instance, the birds are put in a crate, shipped to a large city some 300 miles distant, and turned loose. There are perhaps a hundred strange lofts at which they could stay and be well cared for, but the home love is so strong in them that they fly 300 miles, perhaps in a storm, against the wind all the way, rather than settle in a strange loft.

There are four things necessary to every flying loft—self feeder, containing grit, oyster shells and ground charcoal, a lump of rock salt, a bath pan and a drinking fountain.

The loft is equipped with traps. Those are simply pieces of wire in the shape of an inverted U. These are fastened at the entrance in such a manner that the birds can easily push them and enter, but, once in the loft, they cannot get out again.

The loft must be so situated that there is no danger from telephone wires, for when a bird gets home from a lengthy fly it drops into the home roof with great velocity. If it hits a telephone wire at this moment it may break its neck, or sustain some serious injury.

In feeding birds that are flying hard schedule, variety is the main necessity. The birds are not fed one kind of grain alone, but several kinds. All grain fed is one year old, lest it should sour in their crops.

Flyers cannot be fat, for no bird can fly long distances when in that condition. They are not fed from a self-feeder, therefore, or by any other device which keeps food constantly before them. The best way is to feed them twice a day, and only as much as they will eat up clean.

As soon as the bird has learned to fly well its training is begun. It is put in a separate loft with others of the same age.

After it has become accustomed to its new quarters, the trainer comes in some morning and throws grain on the floor. He then chases them out before they have time to eat and makes them fly five or 10 minutes; not having had their breakfast, they return to the loft as soon as they are light. When they enter, the traps come down and they are prisoners. In the afternoon the process is repeated.

This is kept up until about the middle of August, the time they are made to fly being increased gradually, until they are flying two or more hours a day.

They are then taken about a mile away from home and turned loose to return home. This is repeated in a different direction each day until they know the city perfectly. They are then flown in one direction.

They are first taken about nine miles away from home and turned loose. Then the distance is "jumped" about 10 miles, i. e., they are taken 10 miles further than they were last time. They are then flown from 35, 68, 74, 100, 150, 230 and 300 miles, with intervals of about four days between each trip. The flying season begins September 1.

The owner of the birds trains them up to 100 miles. The Spokane Homing Club flies from 100 to 300 miles. The races begin at 100 miles.

In selecting a flying course the club is careful to keep away from mountains and large bodies of water, as they are apt to confuse the birds.

When the young birds have flown 300 miles they are allowed to rest until the following April, when they are flown in the old bird races.

The flying season for the old birds begins April 1. They are flown 100, 175, 300, 375, 475 and 600 miles with intervals of about five days between each flight. The races for old birds begin at 100 miles.

The Spokane Homing Club is starting out a new schedule for young birds. The birds flew 15 miles coming home from Medical Lake. The best time was 18 minutes. The club will probably fly this lot as far as Hot Springs, or about 315 miles, air line.

Some of the most notable records for birds owned by the Spokane Homing Club are:

Glenkirk, owned by Arthur Melrose—61 miles in 50 minutes, or 1821 yards a minute. Parents of bird are both 500 miles.

Thunderbolt—100 miles in 4 hours, or 1100 yards a minute.

Cyclone, imported from Belgium, 600 miles, got home same day.

Feeding Turkeys for Market.

AS SOON as the weather begins to turn cold and insect food becomes scarce, an increased grain diet must be provided for the growing turkeys. A ration of wheat and corn is the best. Do not feed them too much at first, but gradually increase the supply until they are having all they will eat.

Those who succeed best in having the turkeys ready and in fine condition for the early market are those who allow them their freedom and feed them all they will eat of wholesome, fattening grain. Even when finishing them it is not well to confine them. If they are fed each day at regular hours and at the same place, it will be an easy matter to have them come three times a day to this place to be fed. Their longing for food being fully supplied, less violent exercise will be taken, and the energy that would be expended in their wanderings in search of food will be directed in the more profitable channels of growing and developing for market. Turkeys that are poorly fed during the fall expend in seeking food that is no longer attainable considerable of the flesh they may have gained.

When feeding turkeys for market it must be remembered that they will sell for considerably more per pound than can be obtained for hogs or cattle, while the actual food cost per pound of turkey meat is but little, if any more than for hogs or cattle. It will always pay well to give to growing turkeys all the grain they can eat.

MARKETING.

After the turkeys are grown and ready for market, quite as much care and attention should be given to the killing and shipping as to the proper growing. Where these things can not be done to good advantage, it is better to sell them alive. Buyers who are prepared to kill, dress, pack, and ship turkeys, and to save the feathers, should be in position to pay what they are worth alive; and should be able to handle them at a profit, better than can the grower, who may not be prepared to do the work to advantage. So much depends upon marketing them in the best condition that small growers should either dress and sell to their home market or, providing it can be done at a fair price, sell alive to someone who makes a business of handling such stock.

KILLING.

Kill nothing but well-fatted stock. It seldom pays to send ill-favored stock into market. Do not give any food to the turkeys for twenty-four hours prior to killing. This allows the crop and entrails to become empty and avoid much of the danger of spoiling. Full crop and entrails count against value; they often taint the meat and prevent it being kept for any length of time.

METHOD OF KILLING.

There are two methods of killing largely used. The most popular is to suspend the fowl by the shanks, head down, and cut or stick it in the mouth with a knife made especially for this purpose. This severs the arteries and cuts into the brain, causing insensibility and a free flow of blood from the mouth. This is called sticking in the roof of the mouth.

The other plan is to break the neck by a quick twist or jerk backward. When the neck is completely disjointed the head is pulled away so as to form an open space in the neck in which the blood may settle. This plan has been but little used, though the claim is made that, when so killed the fowls will keep longer, because there is no opening by which the air can get into the body, as there is when they are stuck in the roof of the mouth. This method has been more used for chickens than for turkeys, and to use it well requires considerable practice.

The method of bleeding with an ax or hat et has been employed for ages.—Poultry Success.

Looks Like Revival of Interest in Turkeys.

We have not seen many turkeys yet this season, but within the limited circle of our observation during periods when we cannot get far from home and office we have seen more turkeys this season than in all previous seasons of residence in Massachusetts. Here within a few miles of Boston, on small farms, and even in back yard poultry plants, are small flocks of turkeys,—not enough to indicate that Boston and this vicinity are to become noted for turkey growing, but enough to suggest that this interest may be only part of an interest in turkey culture spreading to other parts of the State and of the New England States.

We have never been able to understand why there was not more interest in turkey culture here. True, the conditions are not as favorable for that branch of the industry as in some other sections of the country, but in some other lines people here have learned that it is not best to altogether discontinue home production because the competition of more favored localities has made it less profitable than of old. Possibly, too, the demand for young turkeys for broilers has something to do with the seeming increase of interest in turkey culture.

It is not to be expected that in this territory a large turkey culture will interest people on farms as generally as in some parts of the west, but there are localities and farms where a little attention given to turkey growing would add to the receipts of those interested without in the least interfering with other lines pursued.—Farm Poultry.

Rattling in Throat.

Rattling is an indication of mucous in the throat and may be due to simple catarrh or more serious disease. One of the best remedies we have found for any of the poultry diseases of the nostrils, mouth or throat is permanganate of potassium. It is not expensive and is harmless. Put about two grains of it (as near as you can guess, but more is less will do no harm) into a tin cup half full of water. When it is dissolved dip the fore part of the bird's head in it two or three times so that a portion of it comes in contact with the affected mucous membrane. Hot water is preferable. It could be dissolved in water and squirted into the nostrils in a machine oil can if desired. Only mix what you want to use each time as it soon spoils after being dissolved.—Poultry Success.

FOR CONGRESS,

A. O. STANLEY,
OF HENDERSON.

The Weather.

For Kentucky—Probably cloudy
Saturday. Colder by night.

Bishop C. M. Galloway, of Jackson, Miss., is critically ill with congestion of the brain.

Congressman E. Rockwood Hoar died Thursday night at his home in Worcester, Mass., after a long illness.

This is one time that every Democrat can vote early and often. That he can vote as often as twice the same day.

George Estes, a negro who killed a deputy sheriff at Hales Point, Tenn., was taken from the officers by a mob and hanged.

Dr. Burrus A. Jenkins, president of Kentucky University, at Lexington, has resigned on account of ill health and the necessity of living in a different climate.

At Los Angeles a widow balked at the word "obey" in the ceremony and the would-be groom bowed himself away from the marriage altar with the remark, "Then the deal's off."

The trial of disbarment proceedings brought at Winchester against Judge William M. Beckner was adjourned until today in order to allow the defense to read documentary evidence which was presented by the prosecution and a decision is not expected for some time.

The Louisville Herald, which professes to know more about Democratic politics than the Democrats themselves, says all arrangements have been made by "swamp" McCreary in Louisville and carry the city for Beckham and Hanson. Has anybody ever doubted that Louisville would go for Gov. Beckham?

Chief Justice Hobson has written a strong letter of endorsement of Gov. Beckham's candidacy. He says: "For the past six years I have been thrown here a great deal with him. He has been constantly at his place and attentive to business. The talk about his habits and insincerity is unfounded."

Daniel Adams, the second of the Lexington Asylum attendants to be tried for cruelty to patients, was given one year in jail, which sentence he accepted without appeal and entered upon his service. J. M. Claggett, the third man indicted, escaped. His case was dismissed for lack of evidence.

While Prof. E. A. Gullion, candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction, has had long experience as a superintendent of county and city schools, he has for years owned and edited a Democratic newspaper. He has been president of both the State Teachers' Association and of the Kentucky Press Association. His experience fits him admirably for the office of State Superintendent. If he be elected Kentucky will make progress along all educational lines. He will also secure the active cooperation of all the newspapers in begetting inspiration and enthusiasm for the great cause of education. By the way, why shouldn't the newspapers be represented occasionally on the State ticket?

Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, of South Carolina, "the pitchfork orator," is bound by contract to refer in no way to the race problem when he lectures in Cleveland this winter. Should he say or hint at anything calculated to inspire race hatred he will forfeit all claims to remuneration. Tillman will appear in Cleveland December 19 to lecture on "A Plea for the Common People."

If Kentucky would have her new twins—the State normals—properly furnished and developed it would be well that Prof. E. A. Gullion be "put next" by electing him Superintendent of Public Instruction. Besides his record of more than 20 years as an advocate of normal schools, he worked to secure the creation of the new schools at Bowling Green and Richmond, and in all his campaign literature he has committed himself, heart and soul, to the proposition to foster and develop them all—good enough for the best.

The grand jury at Lexington yesterday was instructed to make an investigation of the disorderly conduct of the students at State College on Halloween night, when several patrolmen were injured by rocks thrown by the boys, and indictments for felony charges are expected. Four boys are under arrest.

Remember that there will be two separate polling places in each precinct, 100 feet apart. Under the primary call, Democrats are required to vote for Congressmen before they are qualified to vote in the Democratic primary.

Gov. Beckham, unless all signs fail, will be an easy winner in Christian county by a large majority. The Governor has never lost this county in any of his races and his friends are better organized than usual. If the total vote goes to 3,000, his majority may reach 1,000.

In stamping your ballot do not fail to vote for Crenshaw and Gullion. They are both good men and need your vote. In the excitement of voting for Governor or Senator, we may forget that there are others on the ticket.

A highwayman held up a woman at Oakland, Cal., and finding her purse contained only 25 cents returned it, and after stealing a kiss walked away laughing. She reported to the police that he was "a jolly fellow with a pretty face."

John B. Haile and Miss Ora Lee Haile, of North Christian, were married in the county clerk's office Thursday.

R. C. Crenshaw For Commissioner of Agriculture.

Especially fitted by reason of being assistant in the office of the Commissioner of Agriculture for the last four years, R. C. Crenshaw enters the race for that office, before the Democratic primary on November 6 and his friends claim that he has the race already won. Mr. Crenshaw has made an active canvass of the state and has received only the most encouraging reports from every county in which he has assisted Hubert Vreeland in the holding of farmers' institutes.

Beginning life on a farm and learning there the rudiments of farming, Mr. Crenshaw has the basis of a practical knowledge of farming which, added to the study he has made for the past four years, gives him a proper understanding of the office of Commissioner of Agriculture should be filled so as to get the best results for the farmers of the state. Mr. Crenshaw has been studying soil and crops for four years and has acquired information which is invaluable not only to him but also to the farmers of the state. —Mayfield Messenger.

Sam Jones Worth $250,000.

Rev. Sam P. Jones left an estate estimated at $250,000, consisting largely of valuable properties in Atlanta, Cartersville and other points. Property belonging to Mr. Jones was sold here not many years ago for $80,000.

Mr. Jones owned a splendid Kentucky farm, but sold it because his evangelistic work prevented him from giving it the necessary attention. Those in a position to speak authoritatively say that for many years Mr. Jones' income was from $35,000 to $40,000 a year from his evangelical and lecture work.

Of this great sum he annually gave away to charitable work more than two-thirds of his earnings. His benefactions were so wide and varied that few but his own family knew of them. He rarely spoke of them, and sought to keep them from the public.

His life insurance was fully $75,000, and this, of course, will go to his estate. It is believed that his wife will administer the estate. —Atlanta Georgian.

NO COUNT CASTELLANE

Sweet Scented Gourd Vine Anna Gould Married.

The hearing of the Castellane divorce case was begun yesterday in Paris. Maître Cruppi, attorney for the countess, submitted documentary evidence and addressed the court for more than four hours. He recited a long list of cruelties and infidelities of Count de Castellane, and told in detail how Anna Gould's millions were squandered by her profligate husband.

Judge Gary Dead.

Judge Joseph E. Gary, of the superior court of Chicago, died suddenly yesterday. He had been on the bench for forty-three years and made a national reputation in the anarchist trials of 1883, in which he presided. He was born in Potsdam, N. Y., in 1821.

The Indian Summer.
Now glows the sunset like a crest,
High fed with fire—and flaming tips
Reach up to vie with crimson West.
Where bloodily dries its finger dips!

The mirrored stream clones in a rhyme
Toward its haven in the sea,
And thus our lives in Autumn time,
Float onward to Eternity!

The seed we sowed, the grain we won,
Is weighed in hearts made sad or light—
Oh, joyous be whose summer run,
Knows not of wind-swept field or blight!

Our rock strewn paths, by dead hopes gray,
Or through the wood ablaze with red,
We move along that self-same way
Where living deeds our trail has sped!

Twere life to feel our course is right,
When life floats gently out to sea,
That God, in his supremest might,
Still guides the ship to Eternity!

By the Way.
A New York reporter claims to have seen a woman take her time to board a street car. He says she didn't try to get on the car until it had stopped. She didn't stop her baggage or step on her dress as she mounted the steps. She took her time when leaving and did not try to get off until the car had stopped—and, wonder of wonders, she stepped off frontwards! That New York newspaper man must think we are a lot of easy marks to believe that!

The new spelling reform makes the dialect writers hunt their holes.
Mark Twain is writing his autobiography. Put me down for a copy, Mark, but here's hoping it will be continued for a long time yet.

The world loves a joker but seldom pays him anything more tangible than laughs. If you buy the baby's shoes, you must be serious. I haven't any baby so it doesn't make any difference in this case.

And, besides, I may not be a joker at all.
I know, too, that I have my serious moments. Just the other morning I was dodging into the bathroom in my shirt-sleeve and I stubbed my toe against the bathroom door. Gee, but I was serious for awhile!

But the funny part of it was, my wife wasn't serious one bit. She laughed immoderately and doubled up like a wet straw that you have been sucking elder through.

This made me more serious than ever—and that day when I went down to my office I got a check for a poem I had written three months ago.

It pays to be serious, all right!

Speaking of bathrooms reminds me that we are getting mighty stuck up as a nation. Time was when we used to bathe out in the horse-trough by the pump—and then we graduated into the wash-tub in the kitchen!

Next some fine-haired cuss invented the bathtub and after he had broken an arm trying to stand up in the hamper slippery receptacle, he began to tell other folks what a fine thing it was.

The smart set caught right on and began taking cold baths and blowing about it. It sounded real civilized to tell how they arose in the dim light of the morning, threw their bathrobe about them and made a dash for the bathroom. They turned on the cold water, "right out of the lake" and flopped in with a "booh!" Then they watched around in the frigidity and noticed the goose pimples rise on their epidermis.

Then they got up and rubbed the skin all red with a Turkish towel and gloated at the glow of their catenae. The novelists took up the cry and pretty soon it was the fashion to have a bathtub in the house.

Somebody soon discovered that it was not fashionable to have a family bathtub and the smart set installed one in the rear of the smokehouse for the maid. Now there must be one for the maid, one for the guest, one for Mr. and Mrs. Seadhurst who own the place, and one over for emergencies. It is a sign of the times that cleanliness is next to godliness some people I know need only to quit grafting and they will be in Heaven!

I used to take 'em cold that way until the doctor told me no man who was subject to rheumatism should indulge such a luxurious habit and I quit taking baths—cold.

And every time I hear anybody say anything about cleanliness, I am reminded of the old tramp and the soap advertisement. "I used your soap 20 years ago and have not used any since."

Gee, this is the last game of the pennant fight in Chicago and it's only three o'clock. I wish I knew right now what the score would be.

Well, so long, swimming school is out for to-day!

It's Worth the Money.

A Kansas woman, Bessie A. Stanley, of Lincoln, won a $250 prize by writing the following definition of "What Constitutes Success."
"He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much; who has gained the trust of pure women and the love of little children; who has filled his niche and accomplished his task; who has left the world better than he found it, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others and given the best he had; whose life was an inspiration whose memory is a benediction."

FRANK CUNNINGHAM,Well Known Here, Victim of Frightful Accident.

Frank Cunningham, formerly of Henderson, Ky., and a nephew of Judge W. P. Winfree and Mr. J. H. Winfree of this city, met with a terrible accident near the town of Nicholas, Cal., a few days ago.

Concerning the affair, the Byron, Cal., Times says:

"He and two companions were employed by the Bay Counties Power Company and were splicing what was supposed to be a dead line.

Through some unknown reason the power was turned on and off instantly, and the three men were immediately enveloped in flames.

One man, named Thomas Lee, was killed outright and Cunningham and T. J. Sunday of Philadelphia were burned from head to foot.

Monday was badly burned on the crown of the head, and is not expected to recover.

Frank Cunningham is in the hospital at Sacramento and is receiving every attention possible. Both feet and both hands are frightfully burned and he has a severe burn on the left side.

Late Wednesday evening amputation of the left hand became necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham and John Cunningham went to Sacramento and remained two days with the stricken boy.

Frank Cunningham is an only son. He had just reached his majority. Besides his parents he has two sisters, Miss Mary and Miss Susan. Frank had intended to return home in a few days."

HENRY BOSWORTHFinds His Very Valuable Diamond Stud.

The proverbial good luck of State Treasurer Henry M. Bosworth was illustrated yesterday, says a Lexington dispatch, by his finding his famous $250 diamond stud, after it had lain in the street for a night and day, where it was passed by hundreds of pedestrians and pushed into the gutter by the street sweeper. Mr. Bosworth lost the gem Monday evening. Yesterday morning a thorough search of places where he had been found to find it. In the afternoon he decided to go foot by foot over the exact route he had traversed before. As he came to Short and Upper streets he spied the diamond as it lay sparkling in the gutter. It had doubtless fallen into the street and had been pushed into the gutter by the street sweeper.

WEIGHED FIFTY POUNDSAnd Traveled With Barnum & Bailey's Circus.

Richmond, Ky., Nov. 2.—William Vaughn, claimed to be the thinnest man in the United States, was buried here Wednesday in the Richmond cemetery. He was 65 years of age. Vaughn was six feet six inches tall, and at his death, which occurred Sunday night at Long Beach from pneumonia, he weighed less than fifty pounds. For a number of years Vaughn traveled with Barnum & Bailey's circus and had visited nearly every country in the world. He was exhibited as the "walking skeleton."

ARE ORGANIZING.Farm Hands of Logan and Robertson Counties Adopt Scale.

The Russellville Democrat says: The following circular has been secretly distributed among the hired hands and croppers of this section. Those who have had the matter in charge have been very industrious, as well as secret in handling them out and it was just by the merest accident that a representative of this paper secured one. We publish it in order that the landlords of this county may understand the situation. The circular follows:

"To the Croppers and Hired Hands of Logan County, Ky., and Robertson County, Tenn. To Whom It May Concern:

"We, the undersigned, do agree as follows: Not to work after 1906 for less than set price that the Labor Union Committee, of Logan and Robertson county has fixed. We must have half of the corn and tobacco and everything furnished. We must have two acres of corn to every one acre of tobacco, and half of the wheat where the croppers furnish half of the seed and fertilizer or one-third where the landlord furnishes everything. Eighty cents per day for farm labor and board ourselves. We must have $2 a day for wheat threshing, hay harvest, corn shredding and our dinner. Hired hands by the year must have $15 a month and his board. Hired hands by the month must have $19.50 and his board. Where a man furnishes his own house and crops on another man's place he must have the same pay as the other croppers have and all of his coal and stove wood furnished him and a horse to tend his garden. When a cropper furnishes his team and tools he must have two-thirds of what he makes and furnish half of his coal, and all his stove wood furnished to him. All croppers must have pasture for one horse and cow and pasture for hogs enough to make his meat. Every cropper and hired hand that makes a contract to hire or crop must have a written agreement.

GRAND RALLY OF PLANTERS.Meeting Here Next Monday Promises to be a Big One.*PROMINENT SPEAKERS.*Fully Five Hundred Farmers On Horseback Expected to be in Parade.

That a large crowd of farmers from this and adjoining counties will be here next Monday to participate in the parade and hear the speeches goes without the saying. There will probably be four or five hundred farmers in the procession, all on horseback, and the band will discourse music.

The procession will form and the march will be made through the principal streets, and then to the Tabernacle, where addresses will be delivered.

The gathering is being gotten up under the auspices of the members of the tobacco association, and the occasion will be a grand rally.

Several prominent orators have been invited to be present, among the number being Hons. John S. Rhea, A. O. Stanley and Ollie James, and there will also be addresses by local speakers.

The regular monthly meeting of the Christian county members of the Dark District Planter's Association will not be held until later in the month—probably on the Monday following the rally.

HALLOWEEN.Youngsters Got Loose and Had Fun.*Carried Off Gates and Did Things "Awful."

Old people can not see how young people can enjoy the mischief they never forget to indulge in on the night of November 1, generally known as "Halloween." They forget that they were guilty of the very same sport in their youth. Occasionally you run across one of those older people who delight in recalling some of the events of their past life, as we did a day or so since. He is a tobaccoist. He was telling what he and his companions did one Halloween night, and said they did deserve a sound whipping, and soon have gotten it had they ever been found out. In making the rounds of the town that night they gathered up several gates and put them in an empty freight car, and soon they were on their way to the "Sunny South." The owners made good search for their property, but, of course, never heard anything of them.

That was bad enough, but one of the deeds of the boys last Wednesday night, we learn, was worse still. Such a thing as that is simply unpardonable. Not content with lifting gates they found some man's horse attached to a buggy standing on a street. They unhitched the horse, got in the buggy and drove to the river. Driving into the stream they then hitched the horse to an overhanging limb and left. The horse was not found till Thursday a while before night.

Gates were carried off where they were not fastened, and many other pranks were indulged in. That big chair in front of the Kentuckian office was found next morning in the middle of the street, turned bottom side up, and the head board broken off. The boys were out for fun, but the Mayor having put on a few extra policemen that night, they couldn't carry out all their plans for the night.

"PLAYING THE GAME."Company Cannot be Surpassed for Excellence.

To quote an old saying "The play's the thing," but the actor, while not perhaps primeval, is a very important factor, and can either make or mar a pretentious performance. With this in view Joseph and William W. Jefferson, always noted for their excellent supporting casts, have this season outdone themselves, and for "Playing the game," the new modern comedy which Cleveland Moffet and Hartley Davis have especially written for the Messrs. Jefferson it's claimed have engaged a company that cannot be surpassed for excellence. A mass of scenery is used in this production, painted by the famous artist, Ernest Albert, and the production in its entirety will be seen at Holland's Opera House, Saturday night, Nov. 10.

The Publisher's Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS
The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it is, in fact, the popular (unabridged) thoroughly revised in every detail, and every sentence in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and greater requirements of another generation.

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, it is now stated, has been thoroughly revised in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is substantially adapted to meet the larger and greater requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work and of the highest authority in accuracy of definition, and that in the future in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

A Clever Idea.
A rather clever idea in the way of ornamentation was that of a girl who had a big oval buckle of silver that she wanted to use with a black evening gown. She covered the buckle with a daintily gathered fullness of black tulle, leaving a "beading" like a ruche projecting all around the outside, with a silver thread run along the edge. Another buckle of the same sort, this being a square gold one, had a ruche of the same white with white, to be worn with a charming white gown, on which there was a touch of gold embroidery.

STOLEN CLOTHING

Found Hidden Away in Lumber Yard.

Early yesterday morning Ed Kibb, a colored man, who is one of the wagoners for the Forbes Mfg. Co., on driving to the lumber yard on Liberty street to load up, found a gunning bag of clothing hidden away amongst the piles of lumber. He telephoned Chief Roper, who in company with Officer Claxton, went down and took possession of the bundle and carried it to police headquarters.

On opening the bag it was found to contain two or three men's vests, a couple of shaving mugs, a pair of lady's slippers, rather worn, six or eight ladies' shirt waists, dress skirts, white skirts, four or five men's shirts, two soft hats, and a number of articles. In a white handkerchief there were a lot of letters and circulars which had been torn into small bits.

The bag had evidently been hidden away but a day or two. As to who it belonged to there is nothing to show. The bag will be retained at headquarters for identification. None of the articles are new, but rather old and worn.

BUGGY DEMOLISHED

And One Occupant Was Seriously Injured.

Gary Huggins, son of Mr. R. H. Huggins, of this city, and Miss Kate Evans, of Dover, Tenn., were driving near Dover, when the horse became frightened and ran off. The buggy was completely demolished and Mr. Huggins was badly hurt, having sustained a sprain in his right arm and a severe cut on his head, besides several bruises. Miss Evans jumped from the vehicle and escaped injury. Mr. Huggins is assistant general manager of the Cumberland River Land Co., at Bear Springs.

CLOSE COLLECTION

Made by the City Tax Collector This Year.

Of the city tax assessment for 1906, amounting to $46,000, Collector Moore's books show that he has collected $41,000. This is the closest collection ever made ahead of the penalty period. The penalty on the remaining $5,000 will amount $300.

Of the 1,500 white taxpayers, 80 per cent. have paid their taxes. Of 1,050 colored taxpayers, only 124 have paid, or less than 12 per cent. The colored people pay taxes on less than $200,000 of property, and only pay a rate of $1.00, as they pay no school tax. The white rate is $1.50.

OPEN FIELD

To Sportsmen in Tennessee Last Thursday.

Last Thursday was the first open day to the hunters in Tennessee. Kentucky sportsmen near the State line made things lively for quail.

The law in Kentucky allows the killing of quail to begin on Nov. 15. The reports from different sections of the country are most flattering as to the supply, and those fond of gunning are already counting days, training dogs and cleaning up their artillery for a big rush on Thursday, November 15.

THE ATHENÆUM.

Two Interesting Papers Read at Monthly Meeting.

The Athenæum met in regular session Thursday night, with fourteen members present. There were two interesting papers. Mr. Thos. W. Long wrote of "An Historic Banking Concern," which was an account of the formation of the old Manhattan Bank, of New York, under a charter to operate a water company, more than a hundred years ago. His paper was one of absorbing interest. As a companion piece Mr. W. McL. Cavan had a paper on "Bohemian Life in New York," which was listened to with equal interest.

Prof. A. C. Kuykendall tendered his resignation, and Dr. F. M. Stiles was elected to the vacancy.
